The Thanksgiving donations from the Grant and Quince schools, pupils were up to the usual generous standard yesterday. They ranged from large beef roasts to sums of money. The donations were in the main for the orphan's home, but a number of baskets for worthy persons on the North Side were also filled and distributed.

The program for the Thanksgiving exercises at Quincy school, a dramatization of the "Courtship of Miles Standish" was postponed, as one of the participants was unable to take part, owing to a sprained foot. A community sing was given instead, under the direction of Miss Wilson, supervisor of music.

following complaints against the new ordinance by pool hall operators, despite the fact they are given the only hours when they have any trade, late afternoon and evening. They are denied only sale of cigars, tobacco and soft drinks.

"Every time any question comes up," Mayor Corwine stated, "pool hall proprietors loudly claim that theirs is a legitimate business. Yet the police do not have to regularly comb banks, department stores, tobacco stores, theaters, barber shops and other stores looking for undesirables."

Many complaints have been received by the mayor and city commissioners against permitting pool halls to operate at all on the grounds that they are unessential business.

"Either the pool hall, or the pool hall tough must go," the mayor says. "The settlement of the question is up to the owners."

AN AFFAIR D'KANSAS AVE.

Wherein Two Elderly Chesterfields Exchange Compliments Following Accidental Collision of Cane With One's Check.

Scene: Kansas avenue.
Time: Noon.

Enter portly gentleman going north, pushing a cane. He is entirely accidental, I assure you. He is a cane—not a thing."

S. B. G.: "Whether cane or thing, you might have put out my eye. A man of your age should know better than to swing a stick like that on a crowded street. Be advised not to let it happen again."

N. B. G.: "Sir, do I understand you to threaten me? If that is the case your heavy cane is still further endangered, my good man."

S. B. G.: "I do not seek a futile encounter with you, sir. I consider such actions beneath my dignity and fit only for such as yourself to indulge in. Good day, sir."

N. B. G.: "You old reprobate! Were we both young again I would pursue you to the ends of the earth to give you a good trouncing for such an insinuation."

Whereupon both pursue their ways and the crowd, quickly gathered, breaks up with grin and chuckle.

CLEAN UP POOL HALLS

Mayor Hands Ultimatum to Operators Following Ordinance Complaints.

Either loafers and suspicious characters must be cleared out of Topeka pool halls, says Mayor Corwine, or "something is going to pop."

The mayor said today that the police had found it necessary several times a year to inspect the clientele at the tables of clicking ivory. Where men gather together to try their skill at dropping the ivory balls into the pockets, there the lawless ones gather also, he declared. Mayor Corwine asserts that "operators should not tolerate this class of trade," and promised drastic action unless "a change of heart" occurs.

Corwine's attitude reached a climax
